

You may have the right to receive a “Good Faith Estimate” explaining how much your health care will cost

Under the new law, you have the right to receive a “Good Faith Estimate” of the expected costs of health care services before you receive the services. This is a new right for people who are not covered by Medicare or Medicaid. The law also requires health care providers to give you a “Good Faith Estimate” of the expected costs of health care services before you receive the services. This is a new right for people who are not covered by Medicare or Medicaid. The law also requires health care providers to give you a “Good Faith Estimate” of the expected costs of health care services before you receive the services. This is a new right for people who are not covered by Medicare or Medicaid.

